Personal Safety Tips

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln firmly believes a crime survivor is never responsible for the other person's actions or criminal conduct and it is the fault of the perpetrator alone. The UNLPD is providing the following safety tips in an effort to assist the University community with taking the necessary precautions.

- When you are going out, create a plan beforehand. If going out alone, make sure someone knows where you are going, who you will be with, and when you expect to arrive and return. Make sure you have your cell phone and it is fully charged before going out. Perpetrators take advantage of vulnerability and seek opportunities to commit sexual assaults.
- If you ever feel uncomfortable in a situation or with a person, or someone is behaving disrespectfully, remove yourself from the situation, especially if you are concerned it may become physical. If necessary, create a distraction, and if able, involve others and attract attention to yourself in any way you can.

- Sexual assault is any sexual activity that occurs in the absence of consent. Do not engage in sexual activities without consent from your partner(s). This includes each type of sexual activity that takes place, as consent to one type does not automatically mean consent is given for another type of activity. Do not just assume you know what the other person wants. Be aware that anyone incapacitated by alcohol or other substances may not be able to provide consent.
- Listen, believe, and support someone who discloses victimization. Never blame the victim. If they feel comfortable enough to tell you about it, it means they are counting on your help.
- If you experience sexual assault and need help or someone to aid you in navigating the situation, you can contact any of the following resources:
