

SAFETY MESSAGE

Dear Campus Community,

The following information is being shared to enhance your personal safety at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The goal is to provide information so the UNL community has awareness of the situation and can take precautions for their own safety, as well as to encourage reporting of similar situations to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Police. Information reported in this message is based on the situation as currently known to UNLPD.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Police Department is investigating a reported third-degree sexual assault occurring on Saturday, June 28, 2025, at 12:17 a.m. The survivor reported being followed for a short time by an unknown male to the entrance of Abel Hall Welcome Center. The male then slapped the survivor on the buttocks and ran off in an unknown direction.

The suspect is described as a white male in his early 20s with blonde hair and a beard. He was wearing a black t-shirt and black jeans.

Personal Safety Tips

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln firmly believes a crime survivor is never responsible for the other person's actions or criminal conduct and it is the fault of the perpetrator alone. The UNLPD is providing the following safety tips in an effort to assist the University community with taking the necessary precautions

- Remember that rape and sexual assault are never the fault of the survivor. Responsibility lies with the perpetrator. No one deserves, asks for, or provokes sexual assault.
- When going out, make a plan beforehand. If going as a group, use the buddy system and watch out for each other. If you say you will look out for someone, follow through. If going out alone, make sure that someone knows where you are going, who you will be with, and when you expect to arrive and return. Set up times to check in with each other.

- Make sure you have your cell phone, and it is fully charged before going out. Perpetrators take advantage of vulnerability and seek opportunities to commit sexual assaults.
- If you ever feel uncomfortable in a situation or with a person, or someone is behaving disrespectfully, remove yourself from that situation, especially if you are concerned it may become physical. If necessary, create a distraction, and if able, involve others. If you do get into trouble, attract attention to yourself in any way you can.
- Most sexual assaults are committed by an acquaintance or someone the victim knows. If you engage in sex, be sure you understand your partner's limits and communicate your own sexual limits. Practice being assertive about your boundaries and never feel obligated to do anything you do not want to do. "I don't want to" is always a good enough reason and your wishes should be respected. If your feelings are not being respected, that is a sign it may be best to remove yourself from the situation.
- Sexual assault is any sexual activity that occurs without consent. Do not engage in sexual activities without consent from your partner(s). Consent to one type of activity does not automatically mean consent for another. Do not assume you know what the other person wants. Someone incapacitated by alcohol or other substance cannot give consent.
- Alcohol is frequently used to facilitate sexual violence by reducing a person's ability to respond effectively. Studies of sexual assaults show a high correlation between acquaintance rape and drug/alcohol usage. When drinking, consider your surroundings, be aware of personal limits, and be alert to people pressuring you to use alcohol or other drugs.
- Get your own drinks. Never accept a drink from an unknown source, let someone else fill your cup, or leave your drink unattended. If you start to feel ill or disoriented, seek help from friends or contact emergency services for help.
- If you see someone who appears disoriented or unable to care for themselves, you should consider it an emergency and act to support that person. You can call the UNLPD, ask for help from other people, or intervene directly to remove the potential victim from the situation if safe to do so.

- Listen, believe, and support someone who discloses a sexual assault. Remember, sexual assault is not the victim's fault. If they feel comfortable enough to tell you about it, they may be in need of support.
